MISSOULA--

Last weekend in Washington, the University of Montana swim team won two meets and lost one. On Friday, Montana beat Eastern Washington University, 74-41, followed by a win over Whitman College, 83-32. Saturday, the Grizzlies dropped a match to Washington State University, 53-77.

Between the three meets, Montana placed in top positions with several swimmers. In the WSU competition, UM had six firsts. Mary Moberly held two firsts in 100 and 200-meter individual medley. Tracy McLean was a double winner too with wins in 100 and 200-meter butterfly. Kathy Archer clinched first in 200-meter freestyle and the Montana individual medley relay team of Moberly, McLean, Archer, and Michelle Des Rosier beat WSU with a time of 1:50:42.

"We lacked depth," said coach Fred Stetson. "We'd take first but they'd come back with second and third to outscore us in an event."

The Grizzlies dominated Friday's meets against EWU and Whitman. They finished strong in all events.

Montana will get a rest from competition this weekend but will meet Central Washington University on February 1 in Ellensburg to start a three-day string of Washington meets. On February 2-3, UM meets University of Puget Sound followed by Pacific Luthern, both in Tacoma.
